The Stages South of Alexandria.

ON the first of October next the Mail Stage will commence running as follows between Alexandria and Petersburg in Virginia:
Will leave Alexandria every day at 6 o'clock in the evening, and arrive at Dumfries by 5 in the morning—Leave Dumfries at 6 and arrive at Fredericksburg by 11 1-2 in the moruing—Leave Fredericksburg at 12 (noon) and arrive at Richmond the next morning by 6—Leave Richmond at 6 1-2 and arrive at Petersburg by 11 1-2 in the morning.
Returning, will leave Petersburg every day at 12 1-2 P. M. and arrive at Alexandria in the same time. This stage will carry no more than 2 passengers on any account whatever, and not more than 14 lb. of baggage can be allowed to each passenger.
An Accommodation Stage between Alexandria and Petersburg will also commence running at the same time, every other day throughout the year, without regard to Sundays, and will travel only in the day time.—On this line it is the intention of the owners to study the wishes and the convenience of passengers. Still, however, regard must be had to time—Going south from Alexandria they will breakfast at Occoquan, dine at Stafford Court-House, and lodge at Fredericksburg—The next day will breakfast at the Bowling Green, dine at the Oaks, and lodge at Richmond. And on the third day will breakfast at the Half-Way house and dine at Petersburg.
Returning, will dine at the Half-Way house and lodge at Richmond. Early in the morning, breakfast at the Oaks, dine at the Bowling Green, and lodge at Fredericksburg. Next morning, will breakfast at Stafford court house, dine at Occoquan, and lodge at Alexandria.
The owners on this line too, have to request that passengers will be as moderate as possible in the quantity of their baggage, as any thing more than a small trunk or parcel which will go within the body of the stage will be an extra charge.

WEEKLY RETROSPECT OF POLITICS.

From the Liverpool Chronicle.

Dispatches have been received, since our last, from General Sir Hew Dalrymple, at Gibraltar, and from Admiral Lord Collingwood, at Cadiz, confirming the surrender of Dupont's army, and also of a division, commanded by General Wedel, to the Spanish patriots. The substance of their dispatches have been published, and will be found in another part of our paper. The same Gazette also contains an account of the retreat of the French from Madrid.—The army, the king, the court, and all the French resident in Madrid, have left that city in the utmost consternation, in consequence as is supposed, of the defeat and capture of Dupont's army. King Joseph, before he left his capital, is reported to have robbed the palaces of their valuables, and his army following his royal example loaded themselves with the spoil of the churches, and other places. If this information be founded on fact, his catholic majesty will not, in all probability, venture to return into Spain, when once he gets clear of her borders. The people will despise him as

> "A vice of kings,
> A cut-purse of the empire and the rule,
> That from a shelf the precious diadem stole,
> And put it in his pocket."

The patriot band of Spain have been successful beyond expectation; they have given a striking proof what a people determined to be free are capable of, and hold out a useful lesson to every government, and to every king. Tyrants must read this lesson and tremble, while they are constrained to acknowledge, that even hosts of slaves, however disciplined, cannot stand against the nervous arm, raised to obtain a nation's freedom, or to defend the glorious, [illegible] cause of liberty. The population of other countries will, from such an example, learn to form a proper estimate of their united strength, whenever the time shall render it adviseable for them to demand their natural rights from [illegible] of oppressive and tyrannic governors. Nations may suffer long, but there is a point beyond which they will not bear. This ought to teach the rulers of the earth to cultivate by justice, moderation, and a due regard to the rights of men, the esteem and affections of the people; for the people are the only friends upon which a monarch can rely in the time of difficulty or danger; and the monarch who properly fulfils the duties he owes to the people, and is in reality the father of his people, will not only find them dutiful children, but valiant defenders of a cause that is alike the cause of the king and people.

There is no reason to expect that Spain will restore that government which the brave General Castanos has called a feeble and cowardly government. In all probability the Bourbons will never more govern Spain: they will sink into the obscurity they have merited. To say nothing of Carlos, if Ferdinand was inveigled away by any tinsel promises of Napoleon, he must have been a weak character, and therefore incapable of kingly dignity. If he was frightened by Napoleon, he must have been cowardly and unfit to reign—if he were corrupted by Napoleon, he must have been base, and therefore unworthy of a crown! Can it then be expected that such a prince shall be restored to the throne he has abandoned, by heroes, whose blood has fertilized the soil of freedom? It is not at all likely—Spain will rather become a republic. This is rendered the more probable, as the resolution has been formed of assembling the Cortes at Toledo in September, for the purpose of promulgating a new constitution. To effect this purpose, it is said the Duke of Montigo has traversed the vast peninsula of Spain three times.

We learn that a report prevailed at Washington, so late as the 17th ultimo that the abandonment of Moore is and had been required of the American government by sir J. B. Warren. There is no probability that the embargo will be soon removed, it is in general popular; and although for the time being it may be attended with inconveniences, yet these inconveniences are far less than would be experienced in a state of warfare with any of the European nations.—The President has the power to take off the embargo, should circumstances occur to justify it; but the non-importation act must continue until the meeting of congress in November.

The intelligence from Portugal is not very interesting. Portugal has not displayed that energy which might have been expected.—Junot still holds out. A body of 1200 men with gen. Loison, lately joined him at Lisbon, they marched from Almeida, 300 miles distant from Lisbon, without opposition, through a difficult country.

While many of our cotemporaries seem to hail the probability of a war between Austria and France, we trust we may be permitted to enquire what will be the probable result of the contest. The sober reasoner, who takes plain matter of fact and experience for his guide, will hesitate before he admits that war between these two powers is an event for Europe in her present circumstances, and especially for England to rejoice at; he will not only hesitate to admit this, but we are much mistaken if by enquiry he is not led to a quite contrary opinion.

There is not the slightest prospect of any assistance being afforded her by her neighbors. Prussia is buried in the dust, powerless and politically dead. Russia could not contribute 100,000 men to the coalition; she has been baffled and defeated in her attempt upon Sweden; and what is more, is completely governed by the politics of France; from such a power it would be little better than insanity to expect the deliverance of Europe. Sweden may possess a will, but where is her ability? Denmark has been driven into the arms of France, what can be expected from her? It is then evident, that if Austria fights, she must fight alone, or without other assistance than what our gold can give her. Now what is her prospect of success in such a contest? We are told she has 400,000 well appointed men in arms. So we were told when Mr. Pitt lured her into the last fatal coalition. But the end proved that we were told false, and what likelihood is there of the truth of this statement, when the great cause of the jealousy of Bonaparte is said to be her present exertions in completing her military establishment? But allowing this to be true, where are her officers to command them? Has she dismissed all the paltroons whose cowardice shone so conspicuously on the plains of Austerlitz, and filled their places with men equal in discipline and experience to the French officers who opposed them? This she has not done nor been able to do. However large her army may be, it is a mass of inexperienced [illegible] are of the same breed as those who before preferred the safety of their own persons to the military glory of their country; and to complete the disheartening outline, her councils are still filled with the same cabal that has before led her to the brink of ruin, who are so far from gaining wisdom by experience that they still look upon the archduke Charles with an evil eye, and will again commit their armies to a Mack, rather than to the only general that is capable of commanding them.

Such being the gloomy opinion which we cannot help forming of the means of successful hostilities on the part of Austria, we must look with fear and trembling to a contest with the armies of France, not on paper, but really numerous and well disciplined, commanded by officers of consummate skill, whom years of service have elevated to the rank they hold—and under the direction of military talents such as those of Bonaparte. If Austria were an undivided country like Spain, and its people animated with the spirit of liberty, we should hope. But alas! If their language contains the word liberty, it is like a cabalistic sound of which the people know not the meaning: they cannot feel they have a country, nor distinguish between forms of government. They care not whether Francis the II. or Napoleon reigns over them, and they will not fight unless forced to it. The contest, therefore, will be, as before, between regular armies only, and, as the emperor of Austria means to conquer the French, he should first give his people a country to fight for.—Let him break the chains of feudal oppressions, in which the persons and property of his people are held; let him give to them a representative government, the trial by jury, and a free press—let them know and feel they are men, and not transferable property like cattle—and his empire would then be safe, though millions of Frenchmen were to force into it. But while his people are virtually slaves, what matters it to them who is their task master.

Britons may view this contest as alarming under another point of view. It is well known that the Austrian finances are wretchedly low. To whom should this last of the Cæsars look for relief but to generous England. We shall send them subsidies, and as far as money is concerned the burthen of the war will fall upon us. Loaded with an enormous taxation, this would be but a melancholy prospect were we differently circumstanced in other respects; but in the present cramped state of our manufactures, the general stilness of our trade, it is but natural to ask how these subsidies are to be raised without producing extreme distress.

FROM THE AMERICAN CITIZEN.

THE ST. MICHAELS.

THE government dispatch vessel, the St. Michaels, is at length arrived, and if the reports of caucus editing tools may be credited, she left the two belligerents just as she found them; not disposed to pay our permanent embargo system the least deference. The caucus printer of the Baltimore American, who a few days since solemnly and publicly stated that a cabinet council was convened upon information which assured that dispatches by the St. Michael, which was daily expected, would enable the president to remove the embargo; this caucus gentleman, who deliberately palmed upon the community the abominable falsehood: now says the St. Michaels is arrived, that "things wear a gloomy aspect for us!" Mr. Colvin, another caucus editor, remarks, writing from Washington under the eye of Mr. Madison, his patron, that "the gentleman recently arrived from Paris, does not bring any decisive answer from the French government to the dispatches which went out by the St. Michaels." Perhaps, however, we may in the course of six months, hear something by the ship Union, another government dispatch vessel, which sailed "for France and England," on Sunday, the 2d inst. from New Castle, Delaware.

Not a word transpires in reference to England from the St. Michaels. Perhaps, as in the case of the Osage, nothing was sent to the British government by her.

Will our eyes never be opened? Is there now an enlightened man in the community who thinks that our everlasting embargo is coercive? And yet Mr. Madison, the putative father of this bantling, is by electioneering partizans, by those who seek to aggrandize themselves at the expence of the ruins of the country, denominated an able statesman, and urged upon us as our next president! Look at our situation, and judging from what we now are, who can say to what depth of degradation we shall sink, if the secretary succeeded in his presidential pretentions! Is the author of all this calamity fit to be the "ruler of a free people?"

GRATITUDE.

On Friday last, the Hon. Timothy Pickering being in town, as chief justice of the court of common pleas, a public entertainment was given to him by the federalists—a testimony of our respect for his talents, our love of his virtues, and our veneration of his pure and unshaken patriotism—patriotism, which Rome in her proudest days would have delighted to honor. It was a scene calculated to awake the sympathetic feelings of patriotism and virtue in every good mind, to behold this dignified and venerable citizen, who has stood forth almost alone, the unshaken assertor of his country's honor, thus receiving that tribute of affection and gratitude, which we have rejoiced to pay to his associates in toil and his partners in glory. He is now stemming alone that torrent of obloquy, which Washington, Hamilton and Ames once endured with him in support of their country's rights. If, as democrats boast, the wretched policy of the embargo is at an end, what thanks are due to the man, who has "breasted himself to the shock" of popular hatred, and rescued us from destruction.

At half past 12 o'clock, a large and respectable procession was formed at the Mall, composed of the Selectmen, Representatives, and first characters of the town; which proceeded, attended by a band of music, to the lodgings of Judge Pickering. He there joined the procession, which marched thro' State-street to Union Hall, accompanied by the honorable Mr. Livermore, several strangers of distinction, and the Reverend Clergy, who, to their honor be it spoken, are ever found on the side of wisdom and virtue. Believing the indissoluble connection between corrected notions of government and pure morality, long may they continue to bind together in their holy offerings civil and religious truth. A very excellent dinner was provided in an excellent and tasteful manner by Mr. Stetson: the honorable E. S. Livermore presided, and Jonathan Gage, esq. Col. Greenleaf and Col. Peabody, officiated as vice-presidents. A number of patriotic toasts, prepared for the occasion were given. Every thing was [illegible] decently and in order. We met, not for the purpose of party, but to celebrate the triumph of good principles, to express our gratitude to the man who has ever been foremost in their support. The stream of our festivity had patriotism for its source, and it flowed unruffled by tumult, unpolluted by faction. The cause of Spain was not forgotten. We welcomed the spirit that conquered at Pavia—and prayed that the sword of Napoleon might ere long rest with that of Francis the First.

The following toasts were [illegible] chair:

1. The President of the U. States—"His promises were as he now is, mighty. But his performance, as he soon will be, [illegible] thing."

Bonaparte's march.

2. Our country, in a leprosy by the [illegible] bargo—may she go to the ocean and be [illegible] ed.

Rise Columbia.

3. Spain—"Your sovereign is prisoner to the foe, your realm a slaughter house, your statutes cancelled, and your treasure spent—and yonder is the wolf that must this spoil. You fight in justice; then in God's name be valiant."

Spaniards strike home.

4. The enemies of Commerce—may they like Nebuchadnezzar, be driven from men until seven times pass over them, and their understandings come to them.

March in Blue Beard.

5. C. C. Pinckney. "The famous" Washington "doth live again in thee—long may'st thou live, to bear his honors, and reap his glories."

Washington's march.

6. Bonaparte's Legion of Honor—may hereafter enroll the chiefs of vassal nations and not the vassal chiefs of freemen.

Jefferson's march.

7. The Independent Yeomanry of New England. Hear counsel and receive instruction, that you may be wise in the latter end.

Yankee Doodle.

8. Rufus King. A "child of honor"—May his country reward his merits.

Harvest Home.

9. The State of New Hampshire. For our Sister was dead, and is alive again—was lost and is found.

New Hampshire march.

10. The memory of Fisher Ames. Eloquence, Patriotism, Virtue. "We cannot but remember such things were, and were most precious to us."

11. James Madison. The 'Monitor' has babbled his folies. Rome was also saved by the cackling of a GOOSE.

Mother Goose's Melody.

12. The memory of HAMILTON. He was as the morning star in the midst of clouds.

March in the Battle of Prague.

13. The CLERGY—Cedars in the Garden of GOD, which cannot be hid.

14. The Memory of WASHINGTON.

15. The JUDICIARY. A Corinthian column in the melancholy waste—May the storms of Democracy assail it in vain.

Grand March.

16. Theophilus Parsons—The American Mansfield. "Turn him to any cause of legal policy, the Gordian knot of it will untie familiar as his garter."

17. Our UNION. 'A fair olive tree, budding forth fruit,' 'a cypress tree which groweth up to the clouds.' May neither the worm corrupt, nor pestilence blast it.

U. States March.

The following were among the volunteers given:

By the Hon. T. PICKERING. The people of the United States—to save their commercial rights and maintain their national honor and independence, they must choose to represent them, men too wise to be the dupes, too honest to be the tools of visionary and corrupt politicians.

By hon. E. March. May truth and justice prevail, and calumniators meet their just deserts.

By hon. J. Treadwell. The SUN of FEDERALISM, emerging from a dark eclipse—by its light and progress, may our land be once more cheered and blest.

By I. Tucker, esq. The county of Essex.—may there ever be found here a junto to disseminate correct principles, and a phalanx to oppose lawless oppression.

By a Stranger. The town of Newburyport—though but a speck on the map of our country, her citizens, like the handful at Thermopylæ, will prove a bulwark in defence of the rights of New-England.

The brave Spanish Patriots. Strength to their arms to break the iron sceptre of Napoleon on the tyrant's head.

The state of Vermont—we hail her return to correct principles.

The voice of the people, which has spoken better things, than the circulars of democrats.

Mr. Jefferson's wise measure, embargo, having made rational the crazy—may he no more distract with his philosophic experiments.

General Cuesta—may he prove the Fabius of Spain.

After Mr. Pickering retired:

By the President. The hon. Timothy Pickering—the honest, discerning and dignified patriot—may America profit by his warning voice.

The policy of our democratic administration—like their fort on Plumb island, standing on a sandy foundation.

French influence—the Grecian horse at the capitol of our Troy—may the warning voice of our Laocoon yet save us.

The constitution of the U. States—a ship dismasted—scudding before the wind of democracy—a deaf man at the helm, and a blind man conning.

Hon. Timothy Pickering—constant as the Northern Star, of whose true, fixed and resting quality, there is no fellow in the firmament.

After judge Livermore retired:

Hon. Edward S. Livermore—a genuine representative of New-England—too wise to be the dupe, too honest to be the tool of visionary and corrupted politicians.

The revenues of our country—as water spilt on the ground, which cannot be gathered up again.

The temporising measures of our philosophic rulers, like the bar at our harbor, continually shifting, always dangerous.

The state of Rhode-Island—restored to the beauty of federalism, may she long enjoy its fruits.

Alexandria Daily Gazette.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 19.

Dispatches have, we understand, been received by our government from Mr. Pinckney as late as the 6th of September. At that time our affairs with England wore nearly the same aspect as on the departure of the St. Michael. A definitive answer was soon expected from the British government to the proposition made on our part to suspend the embargo so far as respects England on her rescinding her Orders in Council so far as they respect us. As the Hope was daily looked for in England on her return from France, she may be soon expected, with the answer. There is however, one circumstance that may produce some doubt of an early accommodation, to wit; the recent appearance of a pamphlet, attributed to a ministerial member of Parliament, in which it is maintained to be the interest of G. Britain, still to continue her orders, notwithstanding France should repeal her decrees.—Nat. Intel.

It is said that don Carlos, son of Charles IV. and brother to Ferdinand and one of the Spanish royal captives in France, lately attempted to make his escape. He was pursued, overtaken, and brought back to Valençay, and now all the captives are more strictly guarded.

The Supreme Junta of Spain, has sent an envoy extraordinary to the emperor of Austria. He went in an English frigate to Trieste to proceed thence to Vienna.

The duke of Orleans, and the son of the king of Sicily, were at Gibraltar at the last date.

COMMUNICATION.

Within a few days past, I understand, that in certain circles long faces are more observable than formerly. Since the return of the St. Michaels a solemn gloom has overspread the countenances of our great men. It has been the wish to conceal their embarrassment, but some will chatter, and the secret leaks out. Thus much has gone abroad, and as it bears none of the marks of improbability, let my readers judge of its value.

It is now found out that the victories of the Spanish patriots are not likely to turn to our account. Great Britain shews a lofty carriage since Mexico and Peru are opened to her, and she finds she can very conveniently dispense with our custom. We begin to suspect that the mighty emperor has broke his wand, for there is no longer that magical effect observable that it has been fashionable at the head quarters to impute to his exploits. Indeed some openly despair of obtaining any treaty in future with Great Britain, as she has arranged such incalculable commercial advantages with the Spanish and the king of the Brazils. I dare say this calculation is a just one; and if so, what will the people think of the manner in which col. Monroe's treaty was disposed of? Look to this, ye gentlemen of Virginia, and see how far Mr. Monroe's policy was preferable to that of his opponents. Had this treaty been ratified, we should have been in an enviable situation: as it is, I very much doubt if every nation, except those who smart under the immediate lash of the Corsican usurper, do not occupy much better ground than we stand upon. I wonder how all matters will stand in Louisiana after the grand meeting of the Cortes in Spain.—— Where is the Knight of the Spur and col. Rifle, that they are not on the bank of the Sabine?

FROM THE AMERICAN CITIZEN.

A real case; supposed—Suppose a popular president, availing himself of his popularity, to nominate his successor:

Suppose a caucus of members of Congress, whether seeking private gratification, or from any other cause, shall assemble and echo the nomination so made by the president:

Suppose, to the destruction of the letter and in contempt of the spirit of the constitution, the nomination, so made and echoed, shall, by party doctrine and discipline, be made BINDING upon the community:

What, in fact, not in name, would be the difference between the hereditary king of England, and the hereditary president of the United States? Would not the president become substantially HEREDITARY? Would not the constitution be overthrown? Would not gross monarchy succeed?

Can a man be in principle a republican who advocates the nomination of Mr. Madison, so scandalously and usurpingly made?

But the NATION will not sanction the odious attempt of the Washington cabal to establish tyranny amongst us. Mr. Madison cannot succeed. Notwithstanding his nomination, the nation has already determined that HE shall not be the president's successor. Denunciations have failed: violence and terror and proscription have failed.

The following letter, (says a late London paper) by the last vessel from Spain, though it contains no new event, narrates some circumstances not so fully known before:

GIJON, August 24.

"Permit me to congratulate you and your country upon the prosperous state of affairs in Spain. You have, of course, learned the defeat of Dupont. I have not yet heard of any official account of the French loss—the Spaniards make it 17,000. Be this as it may, the blow has been great, and its consequences may prove extensive.

"The French have abandoned Burgos. On the 12th instant they had concentrated at that point forty or forty-two thousand men, including the army of Bessieres from Leon, which had just arrived. Joseph left Burgos the same day, and slept at Vittoria on the 13th, and Moncey remained at Burgos with the rear guard—On the 17th Burgos was evacuated, and Joseph had retired to Bribiesca.

"On the 2d instant the city of Bilboa rose and sent to major Roache, requesting him to go thither, and bring what assistance he could. According he sailed on board the Seine, with 150,000 dollars, 5000 stand of arms, some light guns and ammunition.—— Unluckily on his arrival he found the French on the 16th, in actual engagement with the Biscayans. The enemy had sent a strong detachment, 400 cavalry and 6000 infantry, from Vittoria. They were opposed at a bridge half a league from the town, by less than 2000, who were at length, (after losing two generals killed, one of the name of Castanos, brother to the Andalusian) obliged to fly. The French have committed horrid atrocities in the city.

"Major Roche, I understand landed at Castue on the 18th five leagues from Bilboa in order to try to rally the people; it is expected the enemy will abandon the city as soon as they have well plundered it. Saragossa has sustained many formidable attacks from the French, which it has hitherto nobly resisted. The enemy were actually besieging it, but retreated on the approach of 15,000 Spaniards.

"General Castanos is said to have left Madrid on the 5th inst. for Valladolid in order to join Cuesta, who is said to have about 2000 cavalry.

"Fifteen thousand British infantry, I understand, are shortly expected at Gijon, and 5000 cavalry at Corunna. General Blake is with 33,000 Gallicians at Leon, and when united with the cavalry from Corunna, he will have nothing to fear. He may safely advance to Regnosa; and if the British land at Santander, the two armies can form their junction at the same place.

"The Duke de Infantado, and lieut. Col. Doyle, went to Madrid on the 17th from Leon. Captain Carroll remained with Gen. Blake. The Asturians have 12,000 men ready to march, and upwards of 6000 more with which they mean to maintain the 12000 always recruited; the forces of this principality are soon to be augmented to 24,000, besides which their prudent measures taken for calling out the mass of the people in case of emergency. The news from Catalonia, I understand are very favorable. The Spaniards are besieging Barcelona with every prospect of success.

Departed this life, on Tuesday night the 11th inst, after a lingering indisposition, Jhn Page, esq. commissioner of loans for the state of Virginia.
